The Farmer's Wish

In a small village in India, there was a farmer named Raj. Raj worked hard every day in his fields. He grew crops like rice and wheat. One hot day, Raj felt very tired. He looked up at the sky and wished for rain. "I wish for rain to help my crops grow," he said. That night, Raj saw a shooting star. He made a wish. "I wish for rain," he whispered. The next morning, Raj woke up to a surprise. It had rained during the night! His crops were happy and green. Raj was very happy. His crops grew well because of the rain. He had a good harvest that year. From that day on, Raj knew that wishes could come true, even if they were made on a shooting star.

The Little Tailor

In a small village in India, there was a little boy named Rahul. Rahul was a tailor's son. His father worked hard sewing clothes for the villagers. One day, Rahul watched his father sewing clothes. He wanted to help too. His father smiled and gave him a needle and thread. Rahul tried to sew but found it difficult. He pricked his finger and felt sad. His father hugged him and said, "Don't worry, Rahul. Practice makes perfect." Every day, Rahul practiced sewing. He started with small stitches and gradually got better. Soon, he could sew clothes just like his father.

One day, the village chief asked Rahul's father to make a special robe for him. But Rahul's father fell ill and couldn't finish it in time. Rahul offered to help. With determination, Rahul worked day and night to finish the robe. When he presented it to the village chief, everyone was amazed. The robe was beautiful ! The village chief was so impressed that he offered Rahul a job as his personal tailor. Rahul's father was proud of him. From that day on, Rahul became known as the little tailor with a big heart. He continued to sew clothes for the villagers, bringing joy to everyone with his skill and kindness.
